Forts in First Raid on Berlin

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, March 4 (AP) — U. S. Army headquarters announced today American heavy bombers attacked targets in eastern Germany and that one formation "reported attacking a target in the Berlin district."

The headquarters announcement telling of the attack on the German capital for the first time by American bombers said:

"Formations of heavy bombers today attacked targets in eastern Germany.

"One formation reported attacking a target in the Berlin district.

"The flight was made through difficult flying conditions with clouds often as high as 30,000 feet."

Earlier a German broadcast by the propaganda agency, International Information Bureau, said bombs had showered Berlin, but DNB, the official Nazi news agency, declared not a single explosive fell on Berlin itself.

This confusion in Berlin broadcasts, however, apparently was the result of hair splitting as to Berlin's boundaries.

58-DEGREE COLD

The U. S. headquarters announcement that other formations in the impressive armada and their swarming escorts had attacked targets in eastern Germany hinted the daylight assault possibly was a record penetration of the Reich.

The last deep penetration was Oct. 9, when airplane factories in East Prussia were hit.

The formation which took the aerial assault to Hitler's very doorstep and the other bombers in the vast assault thundered through brutally-cold substratosphere temperature as low as 58 degrees below zero—cold so intense it sometimes freezes guns and other equipment and inflicts severe frostbite in a few seconds of exposure.

Antiaircraft batteries opened up on the Americans as soon as the formations swung over Germany, early returning crewmen said.

AIR FULL OF YANK PLANES

"The air was full of American planes—there were hundreds of P-47's and P-51's escorting us," Fortress Co-pilot Lieut. Ira Munn of Presque Isle, Me., recounted.

"As far ahead as you could see there were vapor trails of bombers, and beyond those you could see specks that were other bombers. Ruhr valley flak opened up but nobody got into this. An overcast at about 16,000 feet covered Germany, but over that we could see for miles and miles.

"Our bunch saw only two enemy fighters. One Focke-Wulf minded his own business and went cruising off when he saw our P-47's. A Messerschmitt came under us and

Yanks Slowed By Heavy Rain In Admiraltys

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
Associated Press War Editor

American bulldozers snorted over rain-soaked Momote airdrome in the invaded Admiralty Islands today while reinforced First Cavalry Division troops, supported by day-long aerial sweeps, fought off Japanese counter-attacks.

Seabees, skilled construction workers, landed on Los Negros island Thursday along with other troops when Gen. MacArthur decided to change the Admiralty operation from a "reconnaissance in force" to "complete occupation."

Frequent, drenching rains have mired down repair work on the airdrome, prize of the Los Negros landing, but Associated Press War Correspondent Robert Eunson reported from Allied headquarters the airstrip has been carefully spared serious damage during pre-invasion bombings and can be repaired quickly once the weather clears.

Japanese defenders, surprised and out-maneuvered by the landing, have been pushed back slightly, today's communique said, but resistance is still strong and enemy reinforcements are reaching Los Negros from larger garrisons on adjacent Manus island.

For the first time since the landing Tuesday, enemy aircraft attempted to interfere with Allied operations, the communique said, but at least eight of a 15-plane force were knocked down by American fliers.

Allied airmen based in the Solomons dumped almost 200 tons of bombs on Japanese positions on Bougainville island.

FINNS' PEACE REPLY WILL GO TO STOCKHOLM

STOCKHOLM, March 4 (AP)—The Stockholm Tidningen, quoting private sources, said today Juho K. Paasikivi, who represented Finland in arranging the 1940 peace, would arrive in Stockholm soon with Finland's answer to Russia's peace terms.

The newspaper said the reply would be handed to Madame Alexandra Kollontay, Soviet ambassador to Sweden, and would ask for clarification of certain of the terms.

Turkey to Aid Bulgaria In Bid for Peace

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—An Istanbul dispatch to the London Daily Mail said yesterday Turkey had promised an unofficial Bulgarian envoy to submit to the Allies any Bulgarian request for peace.

The envoy was identified as Prof. Sevov, a close friend of the late King Boris, and was said to have been in Turkey a month "trying to determine the best means of his country withdrawing from the war."

WASHINGTON, March 4 (INS)—The United States government intervened today in an effort to avert Finland's rejection of the Soviet armistice terms.

American Charge d'Affaires Edmund Gullion in Helsinki was instructed by the State Department to inform the Finnish government that the United States hopes Finland will continue conversations.

U. S. WATCHES MOVES IN ARGENTINA

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—United States Ambassador Norman Armour has been instructed to refrain from entering official relations with the Farrell regime in Argentina pending developments, Acting Secretary of State Stettinius announced today.

In a formal statement Stettinius said this government has reason to believe Argentinian groups not in sympathy with the declared Argentinian policy of joining the defense of the Western Hemisphere were active in the retirement of President Ramirez.

"This is the present status of our relations with the existing Argentine regime," Stettinius said.

"In all matters relating to the security and defense of the hemisphere we must look to the substance rather than the form.

"We are in a bitter war with a ruthless enemy whose plan has included conquest of the Western Hemisphere. To deal with such issues on a purely technical basis would be to close our eyes to the realities of the situation."

He implied the way was still open for establishing relations with Argentina.

Contempt Citation For Daniels, F.D. Aide

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP) A Senate agriculture subcommittee voted unanimously today to recommend citation of Jonathan W. Daniels, administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, for contempt of the Senate for refusing to answer questions in an official investigation of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Soviets Reach Pskov Suburbs

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—Russian troops have smashed their way into the outskirts of the Baltic gateway city of Pskov from the east, Moscow announced today, and unofficial Soviet reports said the Germans have put the torch to the ancient Estonian fortress town of Narva.

Red Army units now hold positions in the environs of Pskov from two directions. Seventeen miles southeast of Pskov Soviet spearheads fought their way to within six miles of the Pskov-Warsaw railway, one of two last escape rail routes open to the Pskov garrison.

On the Narova river bridgehead south of Narva, Gen. Govorov's troops pressed westward against stubborn Nazi resistance and succeeded in enlarging their foothold on the west bank.

G-Girls

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—Now it's the G-girl.

It's O. K. to report now that women have been serving for several months in one of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's most vital activities . . . its communications system.

Some 50 of them are radio operators working in the networks which the FBI has set up in its wartime capacity as a clearinghouse in espionage and sabotage matters.

More than half FBI's personnel of 13,000 are women.

3 Nazi Anzio Thrusts Balked

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 4 (AP)—Three small German attacks against the beachhead below Rome were smashed yesterday and Thursday as the Nazis continued to stab weakly at Allied lines after failure of their latest offensive.

A dusk assault against American troops along the Cisterna-Montello road Thursday was beaten back by artillery fire. Two strong enemy patrols probing British positions around Carroceto were dispersed and infiltration attempts in the Moletta river area also failed.

Unfavorable weather curtailed ground operations on all fronts. The Eighth Army repulsed a small Nazi thrust in the mountains.

Allied officers estimate at least five Nazi divisions were used in the recent costly offensive against the beachhead.

Since the British and Americans landed below Rome Jan. 22 they have taken more than 3500 prisoners, a spokesman said.

The Allied airforces yesterday struck slashing blows at German communications in northern Italy and in Rome, blasting railways, destroying a number of locomotives and cannonading shipping and dock areas. Eleven German planes were destroyed for a loss of 10 Allied craft.

Bomb strike photos showed that about 2000 pieces of rolling stock were in the heavily-hit Littorio yards, about five miles north of the center of Rome.

Headquarters declared care was used to avoid religious and cultural monuments in the Eternal City "as in previous attacks."

Sharkey Home From War Tour, Praises Yanks

By ALICE BISSELL

Of all the fighting men he's ever seen, our boys who are now giving Germany a "right cross" to the chin are the toughest and best in the world.

That's the opinion of Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight boxing champ, who returned today from a three months' entertainment tour of our soldiers in Africa and Italy.

But the "talkative tar" (he served three years in the Navy, and his son, Jackie, 15, is now preparing for Annapolis) had to curb himself because of censorship regulations, and was unable to tell all the details of his trip.

The fact, however, that his hair had greyed considerably during his journey, was silent witness to the trials of even an entertainer in the war area, and once tears almost came to the former champ's eyes when he said:

"I wish you could see the morale of those boys. It's a wonderful thing. I wish everyone could see it."

With Freddie Corcoran, professional golfer, and Lefty Gomez, former New York Yankee baseball star, Sharkey made up the only sports unit of the USO overseas entertainment troops, and the first sports unit ever to go overseas.

MET BY FAMILY

Sharkey's wife, two daughters, Dorothy, 19, and Marilyn, 17, and son Jackie, who had special leave from Billard Naval Academy at New London, Ct., greeted him at their Chestnut Hill home after long months of worry about him.

NAB BROCKTON NEIGHBOR IN WIFE ATTACK

BROCKTON, March 4—Charged with attacking the young wife of a war worker after he had forced his way into her home, George Allegra, 28-year-old ex-convict, of Hayward st., pleaded not guilty in district court today to charges of criminal assault. Judge William G. Rowe held him without bail for a hearing Monday.

Mrs. Marian Jaruse, 26, of Williams st., said Allegra, who lives nearby and is a casual acquaintance, appeared in the hallway of her home last night as she was talking with an upstairs neighbor, Mrs. Mary Lenoci.

He asked her to come down, police quoted her as saying, and as she did so he pushed her into her apartment, committed the attack and fled. Her husband, Frank, was at work at the Fore River shipyards and her small child slept in an adjoining room.

When Jaruse returned home from his job, he and his wife went to the police and made their complaint. Allegra was arrested at his home.

Labor Party Heads Blast Hillman

NEW YORK, March 4 (INS)—Sidney Hillman was charged today with damaging the American Labor Party, President Roosevelt and the liberal cause by his support of Communists in the ALP primary contest.

Dr. Harry Gideonse, president of Brooklyn College; Dean Alfange, 1942 ALP candidate for governor;; Dr. William Agar, chairman of the Citizens Committee to Safeguard the Alp, and others joined in urging the defeat of the "Hillman-Communist coalition."

25th Mission Goal of Fliers

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (by air transport)—Anyone who has seen these Fortresses soar away in the early lights of dawn and come home in the late afternoon, looking as though the moths have been at them, must marvel at the hard resolution of the bomber crews.

All have seen their fellows die—horribly sometimes, or come back chewed by steel splinters.

And yet here they go again today, and tomorrow, never knowing whether this is the day when Fate may turn the fatal number.

These are not supermen with nerves of piano wire and bones of tubular steel—just average lads scarcely out of their 'teens who so lately skated on neighboring duck ponds, or carried your groceries or sang soprano in your church choir.

They have just emerged from the chick-shell of adolescence. Yet, unlike the fighter pilots I have just left, they lack the bubbling buoyancy, and form, but they look at you with a cold scrutiny of a cat—sober, level eyes that suggest accusation.

There is one impelling force that keeps them going, day on day, as often as possible. It is the knowledge that when their 25th mission is done they will go home for three months—HOME, the magic word.

So they count their mounting missions as a monk fingers his beads, or a miser counts his gold—bitterly resentful when a head cold prompts the flight surgeon to ground them, and they know they have lost a stride toward their dream.

And then, if lucky, the final day of Glory comes as it came today, to Staff Sergt. Louis B. "Mickey" Majka of 199 Prospect st., Putnam, Ct., and to 1st Lieut. Harvey Paul of 88 Liberty st., Somerville.

Mates Call Around

As Mickey and Harvey walked into the drab, yellow hallway of the Interrogation Hut, their squadron mates grouped around and pumped their hands. They towseled their heads. They thumped their backs and said, solemnly:

"Good boy, I'm glad," in a tone that came from the heart with a tinge of envy—as though they

BOUGAINVILLE, Solomon Islands, March 4 (AP)—Japanese prisoners at the American beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay wrote and translated this letter:

"Dear medical officers and men:

"We would like to express our hearty appreciation toward your kind treatment both day and night and along with the careful medical examinations and treatments you give us. We are hoping to recover our health and are willing to work for the United States.

"We are sure that you are counting the days and minutes for your safe return to the United States. We are hoping that day will be materialized soon."

Lake Tells How Fort Gunners Battled Nazis

Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent in Britain with New England's Berlin-bound fighting men, relates the thrilling stories of the experiences of several Flying Fortress crew members as they battled Nazis in the skies over enemy territory.

"Never is the line between disaster and survival so thin and wavering as it is in the bomber service," Lake declares in telling of the hair-raising adventures of the boys who were your neighbors until war began.

Read Monday's Boston American for these inspiring stories of New England's courageous lads along with messages by boys from Newtonville, Millis, Milton, Watertown and other New England communities.

3 Workers Periled in Blast At East Boston

Three workers of the A. S. Campbell Co., a Prescott st., East Boston, war plant, narrowly escaped being scalded and production in several departments was temporarily halted today when an air compressor exploded.

The force of the blast knocked out nearly 100 windows, shut off the power in other buildings, and blew a steam line. The lives of three workers were endangered when the room filled with steam. They escaped from the building when one of the men turned off the steam.

Damage to the compressor was estimated at $2000 and an investigation is being conducted to determine the cause of the explosion.

Supreme Court Rejects Lepke's 11th Hour Plea

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—The Supreme Court rejected today a last-minute legal maneuver by counsel for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter to save the one-time chief of Murder, Inc., from execution tonight.

The court announced its decision about an hour and a half after Lepke's attorney filed a petition for a writ of certiorari, asking the high tribunal to review the denial by lower federal courts of an application for a writ of habeas corpus for the New York gangster.

In an unusual procedure, the petition was presented immediately before the justices while they were holding their routine Saturday closed conference. Ordinarily petitions are not considered until several weeks after filing. Justice Jackson and Murphy did not participate in consideration of the petition.

NO REASON GIVEN

The court gave no reason for turning down Lepke's petition. Its refusal apparently left Lepke facing death in Sing Sing prison's electric chair at 11 o'clock tonight unless Dewey should grant another reprieve.

Albert E. Klapper, special appeal attorney for Lepke, filed the petition.

Klapper's petition urged the court to consider the question whether the attorney general had power to "terminate a valid sentence of a district court of the United States prior to expiration thereof, without the intervention of a pardon or a commutation of sentence by the President."

This was substantially the issue presented before the lower courts, he said.

Burton Turkus and Solomon Klein, assistant district attorneys of Kings County, N. Y., appeared before the clerk previous to Klapper's arrival and filed copies of the opinions handed down in the lower courts.

CITED HIGH COURT RULING

They called attention to a supreme court decision of 1927 which was cited in the lower courts' opinions, which stated:

"The penitentiary is not a sanctuary. Life in it does not confer immunity from capital punishment provided by law. The prisoner has no vested constitutional right to serve out his unexpired sentence."

Lepke, whose infamous mob was blamed for as many as 80 killings, thus asked the aid of a court which had turned him down cold in another appeal.

Dewey Has Received No Lepke Statement

ALBANY, N. Y., March 4 (AP)—Charles D. Breitel, counsel to Gov. Dewey, said today no testimony or statements by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter "have been received or are expected" by the Governor's office.

Breitel, in addition, denied there has been any communication between anyone in the executive offices and Buchalter.

The New York Daily News said Thursday Lepke had made a statement. The same newspaper said today that Frank S. Hogan, New York County district attorney, was preparing for submission to Dewey's office a report of an interview the prosecutor had Thursday with Lepke at Sing Sing.

The News said the report "contains a rough sketch of the tale of intrigue by which Lepke hopes not only to escape death but to rip the mantle of respectability from those who try to use him."

Killer Trio Again Given Last Meals at Sing Sing

OSSINING, N. Y., March 4 (AP)—At Sing Sing prison here the grim ritual of preparation began again for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and his two condemned companions.

Once again they were taken from their death house cells to preexecution chambers, there bathed and garbed in the death suits that were issued them Thursday—white shirts and black trousers. Once again they were permitted to order their last two meals, and Mandy Weiss was quoted as remarking with a wry smile:

"Well, I'll get good eats again."

All ordered the same last meals: For luncheon, steak, French fried potatoes, apple pie and coffee; for dinner, roast chicken, shoestring potatoes, rolls and coffee. Those were their last choices on Thursday night, too.

A prison informant said the braggadocio the three once displayed was gone but in its place was an air of quiet confidence and a hint of excited expectancy. Lepke was quoted as saying "things are still uncertain."

Louis Capone, miserable with a heart condition, referred to the empty cell next to his, the prison spokesman said. In that cell had been Joseph Palmer, who went to his death Thursday night, the night the Murder, Inc., trio were spared at the last moment.

"When I think of that cell, I am lonesome," Capone remarked.

Buchalter's wife was with him early in the day. Other visitors were on hand to see the condemned men.

LEPKE DENIES DEAL IN DEATH CELL MESSAGE

By ART COHN

OSSINING, N. Y., March 4 (INS)—Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, mastermind of Brooklyn's Murder, Inc., denied today he had offered to barter gangland information in exchange for a commutation of his death sentence.

Lepke dictated a statement in his death house cell here, and his wife read it to the press at a news conference.

The Lepke statement, which his wife transcribed in pencil on two sides of a yellow scrap of paper, follows:

"I am anxious to have it clearly understood that I did not offer to talk and give information in exchange for any promise of a commutation of my death sentence. I did not ask for that.

"I insist that I am not guilty of the Rosen murder, that the witnesses against me lied and that I did not receive a fair trial.

"Four out of the seven judges of the court of appeals thought that Weiss, Capone and I were not guilty. Judge Rippey said we were not given even a remote outside chance of any fair consideration of our defense by the jury and that the evidence wasn't even enough to submit to the jury.

"The one and only thing I have asked for is to have a commission appointed to examine the facts in the Rosen case. If that examination does not show I am not guilty, I am not guilty, and I am willing to go to the chair regardless of what information I have given or can give."

She asked newspapermen "not to alter or change any of his words . . . They are just as he told them to me, and I wrote them down word for word."

Mrs. Buchalter had hardly finished when the silence in a tavern, scene of the interview, was broken by the radio announcement the Supreme Court had denied the appeal of Lepke and his two lieutenants.

"Oh," she gulped, as her son, Harold, 22, who had remained behind her throughout the interview, grasped her arm.

Quads' Mother Near Collapse Over Death

HEANOR, Derbyshire, Eng., March 4—Slender, dark-haired Nora Carpenter, 23-year-old mother of quadruplets, was reported so heartbroken today over the death of the tiniest of them that her mother expressed fear she might have a relapse.

Informed of her condition, Staff Sergt. William Thompson of Pittsburgh, was granted special leave by Army authorities and is expected here today to comfort the unwed mother of his babies.

The surviving three infants, two girls and a boy, were reported today to be "progressing normally."

"Nora is dreadfully upset," said her mother, Mrs. Ellen Carpenter, a munitions worker. "She was so terribly happy about the babies and was making all sorts of plans for them. It worries me greatly to see her so distressed. I'm afraid she'll have a relapse."

Thompson, too, was grief stricken over the news of his young son MacDonald's death. He learned the sad tidings shortly before he arrived in London, where at U. S. Army headquarters he unashamedly told the world he was the father of Nora's babies, and pleaded that he and Miss Carpenter be left alone to work out their future.

The appeal asking the public to allow Nora and him to work out their own problems was handed to reporters in the form of a typewritten statement, where he was surrounded by his superior officers. In part, his statement said:

"I want to state publicly that I am the father of Nora Carpenter's babies. Nora and I are not married, but we hope to be. We will always stick together and do all we can for the children because we understand each other and are not ashamed.

"I wrote my wife last June and told her about Nora and me and asked her for a divorce. I have written to her again and have again asked for a divorce so I can marry Nora. My wife must understand that it was all a mistake and that our marriage, which occurred soon after I joined the Army, was hasty and thoughtless under the stress of wartime excitement."

Thompson's Parents, Divorced, to Aid Son

PITTSBURGH, March 4—Sergt. William Thompson's divorced parents stood together today in their determination to help their son in his predicament as the father of Miss Nora Carpenter's British-born babies.

His father, a bartender, expressed regret that he couldn't go see his son.

The soldier's remarried mother, Mrs. Alice Houlihan, admitted, however, she "doesn't see how" Bill can be divorced.

"They were married in the Catholic church," Mrs. Houlihan said, "so how can they get a divorce?"

Major Names Vote 'Buyers'

LANSING, Mich., March 4 (INS)—Volunteering the information he has been buying legislative votes for 10 years, Maj. Charles F. Hemans today named legislators he bribed at the 1939 session in connection with small loan bills.

Hemans admitted paying $125 to former Sen. Ernest G. Nagel, Detroit, one of the defendants, and $450 to former Rep. Miles M. Callaghan, Reed City, who resigned after admitting he received the money.

Former Sen. Joseph Roosevelt, Detroit, was paid $50 weekly to act as a handy man, Hemans said.

WASHINGTON, March 4 (INS)—The War Department announced today Maj. Charles Hemans, who testified in the Michigan bribery inquiry, was being retained on active service by the provost marshal general at the request of special Prosecutor Kim Sigler of Ingham County, Michigan.

Gas Station Man Beaten, Robbed

A young Dorchester gas station attendant reported to police today he was struck on the head and tied up by two men who fled after rifling the cash register of between $25 and $50.

William J. Tibert, 16, Granite ave., said the two men came to the gasoline station, also on Granite ave., and asked to use the washroom. One of the men hit him on the head, he said, and after tying him up with an electric light extension cord, tossed him into the washroom.

The youth said he escaped a few hours later by breaking the window, and a passerby, Mark Joyce, of Lenoxdale ave., untied him.

Youngest of Eight Boucher Children Left Motherless in Slaying

Franklin Dad of 8 Held as Wife Killer

FRANKLIN, March 4—Bewildered and motherless, the eight children of Elder J. Boucher, 36-year-old jobless millhand, faced a bleak future today as their father was held without bail on a charge of bludgeoning their mother to death in a jealous rage.

COURT PAWN—While John Langan and Joan Manners fight bitterly in Washington court for her custody, 11-year-old Joan Langan plays contentedly with her dolls . . . outside the courtroom. Mother told court Langan was not father of the girl, and a blood test has been ordered.

In district court Boucher waived hearing and was held for the April sitting of the grand jury. Police said he signed a confession. He will be given a mental examination later, police said.

While the law moved to punish Boucher for his alleged deed, six of the eight children were sheltered temporarily in Franklin Infirmary, rest home for the aged.

Unless relatives claim them by Monday, authorities said the youngsters will be taken by the State as neglected children. Two sons, Abele and Romeo, are already in a State school for boys.

At the infirmary, Marie, 16, the oldest child who was sent by her father to call police after the slaying in the unkempt four-room apartment, cared for her younger sisters and brothers. They are Julian, 8; Shirley, 7; Rita, 6; Cecile, 2, and Edward, 8 months.

Marie, a woolen mill worker, was the sole support of the large family since her father lost his job several weeks ago, police said. An aunt in Woonsocket visited the unfortunate children at the infirmary and said she might take Marie to live with her.

Norwood Flier Awarded DFC

The Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded to Staff Sergt. Joseph F. Purpura of Norwood, a tail gunner serving in England with the Ninth Air Force Command, the Army announced today. Purpura already holds the Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters for heroism during earlier missions.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustino Purpura

Scores at Last Rites For John R. Gay

Scores of newspaper and business associates joined with relatives today in paying final tribute to John R. Gay, 61, classified advertising solicitor with the Boston Hearst newspapers for 25 years, at a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Raphael's Church, Medford. Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Gay, one of the best known advertising men in Boston, was a familiar figure along Automobile Row, where he handled accounts for many years. He was a member of Boston Lodge of Elks.

He leaves his widow, Marie B. Gay of Boston ave., Medford.

Religious Rites Mark F.D.'s 11 Years In Office

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt joined several hundred high government officials, relatives and friends in a special White House religious service today in observance of the 11th anniversary of the Chief Executive's first inauguration.

Prayers were said for peace and "Thy servant Franklin, the President of the United States," and heavenly guidance sought to "save us from all false choices, and that in Thy light we may see light."

It was the same Episcopal service that has been followed each March 4. Today, as last year, it was given before an improvised altar in the executive mansion's east room behind which stood the flags of the United States, the United Nations and the President.

ROYALTY ATTENDS

Mr. Roosevelt sat in a front row gilt chair. Near him were Mrs. Roosevelt; Frederic A. Delano, an uncle; Mrs. John Boettiger, a daughter, and her little son John; and Miss Margaret Suckley, a cousin.

Nearby sat Crown Princess Martha and Crown Prince Olav of Norway and their three children, Princesses Ragnhild and Astrid and Prince Harald.

Also present were Vice-President and Mrs. Wallace, members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court and their wives, heads of the armed services and executive agencies and legislative leaders except for Sen. Barkley, Senate majority leader, who was reported by the President yesterday to be ill.

MIXED CHOIR SINGS

Conducting the services were the Rev. Endicott Peabody, former headmaster of Groton School, Groton, Mass., where the President attended as a boy; the Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, the Roosevelt family church in this city; the Rev. John G. Magee, minister-in-charge, St. John's; the Rev. Howard A. Johnson, curate of St. John's.

A mixed choir from St. John's sang "Go Not Far From Us, O God; Cast Us Not Away in Time of Stress."

World News In Brief

MOSCOW (AP)—The Moscow-Leningrad railway has been restored and the first freight train already has made the journey.

NEW YORK (AP)—A total of 9800 "high-class entertainment" places in Tokyo, ranging from the Imperial Hotel's restaurant to a long string of geisha houses, will be closed tomorrow by Premier Tojo to "fit the mode of public living to wartime requirements," a Jap radio said today.

LONDON (AP)—A few wild shots fired 10 days ago by a drink-befuddled Allied soldier who crossed the border from northern Ireland into Eire has brought on a case of invasion jitters. The Eire army was ordered on a five-day "stand to" alert following the incident.

CHUNGKING (AP)—Establishment of a "free Japan movement" in the Communist-controlled territory of North China by a group at outs with the Tojo regime in Tokyo, was reported today in the Chungking Communist newspaper.

NAPLES (AP)—A proposed 10-minute strike of Italian workers in protest against Churchill's statements in support of Badoglio has been cancelled and will be replaced by a mass meeting Sunday.

ALGIERS, March 4 (AP)—Former Vichy Minister of the Interior Pierre Pucheu, defending himself against treason charges, told a French military tribunal today he came to North Africa at Gen. Giraud's invitation. He accused the French Committee of National Liberation of putting Vichy on trial, and asserted Vichy prevented German occupation of North Africa and preserved it for the Allies.

SCANTON, Pa., March 4 (INS)—Officials at the Tobyhanna air base investigated today the crash of an Army airplane at Moosic, near Scranton, in which three fliers were killed and a fourth injured.

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—British sources today suggested that loading of a cargo of oil for Spain might mean a British-American agreement with Generalissimo Franco is imminent.

EXPERTS SCAN NOXON DATA IN TRIAL LAG

By PAULINE WARREN
Boston American Staff Writer

PITTSFIELD, March 4 — Although illness of a juror has called a temporary halt to the trial of Atty. John F. Noxon, Jr., accused of murdering his hopelessly abnormal baby son by electrocution, lawyers for the prosecution and defense today continued important work in the unusual case.

Dist. Atty. Charles R. Alberti and his aides scheduled additional conferences with medical and crime experts, who are expected to testify soon after the trial is resumed Monday.

Foremost among these State witnesses, Alberti disclosed, is Dr. Alan R. Moritz, State pathologist and professor of legal medicine at Harvard, who for the first time will make public the details of the autopsy performed on the body of little Lawrence Noxon.

J. E. Cullen

The juror's illness also provided defense attorneys with time to discuss further moves.

Immediately after Judge Abraham E. Pinanski announced adjournment until Monday, medical authorities who are assisting the defense counsel met with Defense Atty. Walter J. Donovan to scrutinize objects submitted as evidence.

Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely, chief defense counsel, has gone to his Westfield home, but Atty. Donovan conferred at length with Dr. Charles C. Lund, Boston City Hospital burns specialist, and William C. Barrett, chemist for the New England Lime Co., Adams, another expert on burns.

Dr. Harry H. Bard, physician at Berkshire County Jail, reports that the sick juror, James E. Cullen, 54, will be able to resume his jury duties Monday.

The other 11 members of the jury went to the movies.

2d Lonergan Trial Delay Seen

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP)—Any possibility that Wayne Lonergan's second murder trial would get under way quickly appeared today to be buried beneath legal stumbling blocks.

With the accused wife slayer back in a cell at the Tombs, professing disappointment over the delay, Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan said he had not decided whether to press for a new trial immediately.

"Even if we started tomorrow," he added, "it would take at least two weeks for the preliminary maneuvers."

Among other things, a new jury panel must be drawn because Judge John J. Freschi dismissed the original talesmen when he abruptly ended the first trial yesterday with a statement that Lonergan's attorney, Edward V. Broderick, had sought to make "a farce and mockery" of the first degree murder proceedings.

VETS' BILL BACKED BY WOMAN SOLON

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 4—Sen. Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, only woman in the Senate, today came out wholeheartedly in support of the "G-I Bill of Rights" which seeks to give returning servicemen and women opportunity for a new start in life.

Mother of two sons in the armed forces, Sen. Caraway announced she would vote for the omnibus bill.

Another member of Congress to join the growing ranks of those favoring the measure was Rep. Will Rogers, Jr., of California.

Leaders of veterans' organizations sounded new warnings against over-confidence and asked that the stream of telegrams and letters urging enactment of the program be kept up.

Former national commander of the American Legion Daniel J. Doherty of Massachusetts is in Washington, working with officials of the Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars to line up additional support of Senators and Representatives.

The Legion announced some 250,000 signatures have been received through the mails on petitions urging prompt passage of the bill, coming from Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Idaho, California, Ohio and Arkansas.

The Kansas department of the Legion notified Washington headquarters they have received the support and endorsement of Gov. Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas, who is working for the bill.

The whole congressional delegation from Delaware has lined up behind the so-called "Bill of Rights for GI Joe and GI Jane," it was stated. They are Sens. James M. Tunnell and Clayton Douglass Buck and Cong. Earle D. Wiley.

THE BIG ADVANTAGE
PHILIP MORRIS

They're proved less irritating to the nose and throat . . . and every puff is finer-tasting!

HERE'S why you'll find—in PHILIP MORRIS—a lot more smoking-enjoyment.

First, in laboratory research, PHILIP MORRIS were proved definitely and measurably less irritating.

But that's not all! In addition, the findings of a group of distinguished doctors prove that:

WHEN SMOKERS CHANGED TO PHILIP MORRIS, SUBSTANTIALLY EVERY CASE OF IRRITATION OF THE NOSE OR THROAT—DUE TO SMOKING—CLEARED UP COMPLETELY OR DEFINITELY IMPROVED!

Full reports of these findings appeared in leading medical journals.

No curative effects are claimed for PHILIP MORRIS.

BUT—this impartial evidence proves them to be far less irritating—safer—for the nose and throat!

Urge Vote for Soldiers 18

Veterans and labor organizations of Massachusetts joined forces today in support of the growing demand that 18-year-old servicemen be allowed voting privileges with the start of a legislative drive to have the state voting age lowered from the present limit of 21 years.

Rep. Charles J. McCaffrey of Brockton declared he will file a bill calling for a state constitutional amendment to allow the 18-year-old fighting men to vote.

McCaffrey's action followed advancement of the proposal by Hearst newspapers throughout the country. Leaders in many states have adopted the suggestion of the Hearst newspapers and legislation is pending to effect the change.

The McCaffrey bill goes beyond the "votes for 18-year-olds" to give the right to hold public office. The Brockton legislator ylast year introduced a measure designed to give the youths votes but it was defeated in the House 108 to 64.

On the firm basis that men old enough to fight are old enough to vote, educators and public officials have given their endorsement to the proposal that 18-year-olds be allowed to vote.

Joseph Salerno, state CIO president, declared: "I am very definitely in favor of lowering the voting age to 18. Under the present educational system, 18-year-olds have a better understanding of government than we did at the same age."

Support also came from William J. Doyle, president of Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, AFL. He said: "I would like to go on record in favor of the lowering of the voting age. I think, however, that schools should place more emphasis on good citizenship so that young people will be able to vote intelligently."

Betty Grable Fine; So's Baby Victoria

HOLLYWOOD, Mar 4 (INS)—Screen star Betty Grable and her daughter, delivered by Caesarian section, were reported "doing fine" today.

Miss Grable's husband, orchestra leader Harry James, and her parents were at the hospital when the seven pound, 12 ounce baby arrived.

The child was named Victoria, after the character Miss Grable played in "Springtime In The Rockies."

Cambridge Soldier Tells Of Meeting King and Queen

Nobody hereafter can tell Soldier George A. O'Brien of 71 Spring st., Cambridge—no matter how veteran one might be at poker—that a king and queen don't make a pleasurable pair.

Pfc. O'Brien, who had that mystic first draft number, 158, in the October, 1940, fishbowl drawing at Washington, is stationed in Britain waiting for the invasion jumpoff, and he's met and shaken hands with no less than the king and queen of England.

"The king," relates Pvt. O'Brien in a letter to the Boston American, "asked me how long I was over here, to which I replied 10 months. He also asked me how I liked the country and was I being well treated.

"I replied I was being treated very well and that I liked the country very much.

"I would like to be remembered to WAC Capt. Catherine E. Falvey of Somerville. I had the pleasure of meeting her in London last summer.

"Also I had the pleasure of meeting 2nd Lieut. Irma Whittier, an Army nurse from Somerville, in London recently.

"There are several local boys in my outfit and everything is going along fine with all of us."

Sonnabend Takes Over 4 Florida Resorts in Big Deal

With one of the largest real estate deals since Pearl Harbor completed, Abraham M. Sonnabend, Boston real estate operator and sportsman, and a group of associates will take possession of four outstanding resort properties of Palm Beach, Fla., on March 13.

In a cash transaction, Sonnabend, and his associates became owners of the Palm Beach Biltmore and Whitehall hotels, Sun and Surf Club and the Palm Beach Country Club.

Sonnabend, well known Harvard alumnus and national squash tennis veterans champion, said at his Buckminster rd., Brookline, home that "more than $2,000,000" was involved in the purchase, which took place in New York. He said all the properties would continue under present management for the rest of this season.

Sec. of State Cordell Hull is among the guests at the Whitehall Hotel, while the Biltmore is at present a SPARS training center. Sonnabend's Brandon Hall Hotel in Brookline is currently occupied by the SPARS.

Other local properties of his include the Ambassador Hotel in Cambridge, Abbotsford in the Back Bay, Preston in Swampscott, the Embassy Apartments and Medical Building, Commonwealth ave.

voiced the unspoken wish, "If it were only I."

Mickey is a broad-faced American, born of Polish parents, a kid who worked as a die-polisher for Wickwire Steel under Art Hedman, a lad who played shortstop for the Putnam High State champions when they beat Norwood at Braves Field, and a waist gunner on the "Rose Marie."

He wears a leather jacket enscribed with little allegorical symbols—three swastikas for the Nazi planes he shot down, 24 little yellow bombs for each mission, and a single sitting duck for the time he was "ditched" in the English Channel.

For, like most of these school-age youths, he has known more of sensation, spine-creeps, hazard and the smell of death than is given to a thousand men in peace times.

Today the pressure was lifted from Mickey's soul, and he talked with a fizzing joy that resembled a vocal bromo seltzer—about the three enemy planes he'd shot down. How No. 1 had come on his second mission and had dropped like a flaming rag.

("I watched it till it hit in a clump of trees.) How No. 2 had come over Munster and exploded, "just like a 4th of July rocket—pfutt, all sparks and fire."

The engines of the third had caught fire and the flames licked back over the canvas fuselage, picking its bones clean. ("He gave me a beautiful, head-on shot.")

And each time, said Mickey, he had thrown back his head with a joyful roar—Eeeeeyoooww! Never had he known such a thrill as seeing his shots go true and watching the shiny planes tumble like potted partridge.

Exploding Forts

But the most depressing sensation that he knew was seeing his fellow Fortresses fall like flaring celluloid, fiery pyres which incinerated all within. And he'd seen two go that way.

Others had exploded, so that pieces of planes had scudded by his gun-port, bits of wreckage which he recognized as a hatch-door or a landing gear, or the huddled figure of a man.

It was, he said, not nice to see. And sometimes now in his disordered sleep, such visions came crashing into his sub-consciousness like whizzing black blobs that collided and splintered into fragments like flak.

So he was glad he was done—for the time!

And there was that day over Bremen when the Fortress "Tech Supply," piloted by Ambassador Winant's son, went spinning and fluttering down like a piece of cardboard, though he'd been too busy with his guns to watch the conclusion, and was glad, months later, when the boy turned up in a prison camp.

Lieut. Harvey Paul was less exuberant. You sensed that, as a Fortress commander, he had learned to keep his emotions tightly bottled. He'd been going to Burdett's Business school evenings before the war and . . . well now (he made twiddling finger motions as of escaping birds).

He'd been hit in the arm with a piece of flak . . . like being struck with a ball bat, but no real pain.

No, he never saw any of his bombs hit, because his vision was shut off—a pilot was a kind of aerial chauffeur, but he'd seen a lot of Focke-Wulfe fighters coming head-on, their favorite approach, and had brought his plane home many times with holes punched in it, as though by giant ice picks.

"Ditched" in Channel

And once he'd had to "ditch" in the channel—the time that Micky Majka told about, and had glided the last 60 miles over Germany and the channel, until within 20 miles of the coast.

He'd pancaked the plane into the water, and gotten his crew off into inflated rubber boats during the two minutes before it sank.

And a British air-sea rescue boat had picked them up. No, it hadn't seemed exciting. Your mind goes mercifully numb at such times, and you do things automatically, without fear or conscious reason.

There were other New Englanders hovering around as we talked, for the word had gone forth that a Boston newsman was in camp, and the boys dropped by to chat—for I have noticed more of a community spirit among the New Englanders than seems to exist elsewhere. I have seldom met a Bostonian who didn't know all the others in the vicinity.

So, there was Sergt. Edward J. Hoey of 17 Green st., Watertown, who married Gladys L. (White) eight years ago, worked for Maggie L. O'Brien's White & Clean Laundry, and belonged to St. Patrick's Alumni, of which Mrs. Alice Navin was president.

Sees Ipswich Man

And Sergt. Gardner L. Wile of 13 Mt. Pleasant st., Ipswich, a control tower operator, who was freshly in receipt of a bundle of mail from wife, Eleanor (Gallant), with a late picture of 2-year-old Geraldine.

And Second Lieut. David W. Pinkham, navigator of "Pinky's Pirate" who had just completed 23 missions, and says he'd like to go back to the continent some postwar day to see the targets where he dropped his bombs.

No, he wasn't curious about historic Europe or its famed traditions—he just wanted to see where his bombs hit.

And Staff Sergt. Leo R. Kern of 1 Lamartine ct., Jamaica Plain, a radio operator in the Fortress "Shy Anne," who'd had his pre-war experience in John Murray's General Radio Store (Cambridge).

And Staff Sergt. Kenneth H. Dobson of 72 Linden ave., North Andover, just through with his fifth mission as a top-turret gunner, and who, when I talked to him, was still "altitude deaf" from soaring at 25,000 feet.

He used to work for Charles D. Glennies Ice Cream Co. at the Lawrence High Stadium, and as a chef at the New Ocean House.

went after one sagging B-17, but two P-47's got him. He went down out of control and smoking badly."

PLENTY OF OPPOSITION

The German broadcast said the raid on the German capital was a repetition of an attack which failed yesterday. U. S. headquarters announced yesterday, however, only that American fighter planes had made an offensive sweep over Berlin and made no reference to bombers.

"This time the attack was flown from a westerly direction," the broadcast said. "Only a small part of the American formation—which was strongly escorted by fighters—reached Berlin," it continued.

"They encountered very strong defense and had to jettison their bombs or were compelled to release them without taking aim as they were hard pressed by German fighters. Several U. S. A. planes brought down crashed in the immediate vicinity of the capital.

"At the time when the bombers approached Reich territory the sky was clouded. On their return the bombers once more were engaged in fierce air combats. Planes were observed to crash all over areas defended by anti-aircraft guns."

Berlin has been a goal for American fliers ever since they began operations in the European theater.

The American announcement said the four-engined craft thundering into Germany for the third straight day were powerfully escorted by fighters.

"The whole 8th Airforce was up there today," declared Sergt. William DeBlasio, of Pittsburgh, one of the first crewmen to return.

Schools to Restore Basketball Games

Because of the tremendous popularity of basketball developed in the city-wide recreational program of the Massachusetts Youth Committee, that sport will be restored in Boston high schools and introduced into intermediate schools next winter.

This announcement was made by School Committeeman Michael J. Ward, who presided at exercises opening the Youth Committee's 12th Youth Center at Charlestown High School.

More than 300 pupils of Charlestown High School and the Clarence R. Edwards Intermediate School attended the opening.

Ward was introduced by Asst. Supt. of Schools Dennis C. Haley and was accompanied to the meeting, which was held in the very shadow of Bunker Hill Monument, by three other members of the School Committee, Daniel J. McDevitt, Clement A. Norton and Joseph C. White.

Rev. Thomas W. Davison, of the First Congregational Church in Charlestown, delivered the invocation.

Although Headmaster John J. Connolly, of the high school was unable to be present because of ill health, Acting Headmaster Ralph C. Benedict and Headmaster Albert L. Shaughnessy of the Edwards School and John L. Day, center manager, attended.

In addition to basketball, requests for recreational and educational programs, including other sports, debating, checkers, glee club, and knitting, sewing and cooking for girls were advanced by student representatives.

The students' committee consisted of Lawrence Mahoney Eleanor M. Regan and Joseph A. Carr, of the High School; and Joseph Keefe, Jean Guitair and Herbert Sherrick, of the Edwards school.

Concert numbers were sung by Josephine Lanzilla, Girls' High School soprano soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Fleming, pianist.

Stella Mills Globe's Star

Stella Mills heads the new stage revue, "Follies of the Day," opening with a midnight performance tomorrow night at the Globe.

Her specialty dance has been the sensation of Manhattan nightclubs and cabarets. Comic Mike Sachs, assisted by Shuffles Lavan and Murray Brisco, is the chief laugh dispenser.

"WE'LL put the ads here and the color section there," advertising manager, Ray Milland, tells editor, Ginger Rogers as he takes over control of the fashion magazine, Allure, and incidentally takes over Ginger, too. This is a scene from "Lady in the Dark," Paramount's glittering Technicolor version of the Broadway stage hit, due Thursday on the Met screen.

BACK FROM HELL -:- By Burris Jenkins, Jr.

"TINY RIVERS OF BLOOD FROM HIS CHIN OVERFLOW BEYOND THE CLOSE RANGE OF HIS EYES-!"
"HIS HEAD LIFTS OR THE BULLET WOULD HAVE FOUND HIS BRAIN-HIS FEET FLY UP!"
MARINE PFC ANTHONY "LUCKY" CRUPI OF THE BRONX- A BULLET THROUGH HIS JAW COULDN'T STOP HIM AT TARAWA-
BURRIS JENKINS
"THEY SPREAD LUCKY OVER A LOG UNDER THE PIER HE REMEMBERS SEEING THE WATER RUN OUT OF HIS NOSE—AND THEM A ROW OF BULLETS..."

HIS hands clutch the ground, digging holes for his elbows, and one for his chin that rapidly fills with blood.

He sees tiny red rivers of this blood from his chin overflow beyond the close range of his eyes where stomach-flat he hugs the bottom of a shallow foxhole, rigid against the pinwheel of pain in his head that has never stopped since the Jap bullet pierced his jaw on the right side to splinter its way out through the tip of his chin on the left.

It's all over now. Everything is all over. There's nothing left for Pfc. Anthony "Lucky" Crupi of The Bronx but the quick plunge of a Jap bayonet in his back and the sucking kiss of its withdrawal—just the way he and "Gunny" were sticking Japs coming up the beach a few minutes ago—or maybe it was hours.

Gunny is gone now, but it's getting dark and all about are only dead Marines and the stinking bodies of dead Japs. What a mess! What a hell of a mess! And it was going to be so easy.

Everybody seemed to think so when they were getting into the lighters—even the guys who'd been on Guadalcanal, like "Corky."

"Don't forget to zig when they expect you to zag!" Corky had yelled across, climbing down the nets this morning.

Two Marines Drag Him To the End of the Pier

And then Corky was the first man in their boat to get it!

Lucky saw it happen. Crouched below the gunwales of the LCI as it swung in towards the end of the long pier Corky is 20 feet away as the ramp goes down over open water and Lucky behind him sees a spot of crimson splash on Corky's face and a surprised look and then Corky is in the water turning it red in spurts "like an oil pump" where another bullet struck near his heart.

Even as he follows into what he expects to be shoal water Lucky has only time to cry out in shocked anger, "Corky got it!" and then he, too, is in the water and somebody's heavy shoes are kicking his head and shoulders, forcing him deeper until his lungs fill and he starts to drown.

At the last moment of consciousness he shakes loose the burden of his equipment and floats up gasping, with two fellow marines holding him by the arms and dragging him to the end of the pier.

They spread Lucky over a log under the pier. He remembers seeing the water run out of his nose and mouth and then a row of machine-gun bullets splintering the log under him as he rolls away just in time.

Wet and weaponless, the cluster of bedraggled survivors moved shoreward because even without guns they are still marines with one fixed purpose in life—to kill Japs. There is little to be seen of the first wave except motionless bodies under the seawall or floating, face-down, in the surf, and wrecked barges and tankettes.

Now Lucky and Gunny and Joe are together ducking from log to log and from one side of the pier to the other—still 800 yards from shore—as a cross-fire of Jap machine guns ceaselessly rakes the makeshift shelter.

Lucky doesn't even have a helmet but he borrows two hand grenades and a bayonet from a wounded comrade and works his way down the right side of the pier. It takes Gunny and him three hours to reach shore. Mortar fire pins them down for minutes at a time and after a while Joe isn't with them any more.

Behind the wreck of a Jap barge, the big boy from the Bronx picks up a rifle from a dead Marine as soon as his feet touch solid sand and he races for the seawall, Gunny behind him.

"Take it easy, you dope!" Gunny keeps protesting, "do you want to get yourself killed?"

But Gunny follows close though he has no rifle.

"You got a better chance of finding a gun closer to the Japs!" Lucky yells over his shoulder.

He is in a blind rage now thinking of Corky and Joe and all the others and there's no stopping him even after they go over the seawall. Zig-zagging and dropping every 20 feet they get within 30 yards of the front.

Get Within 30 Feet Of Jap Snipers

They are in among the blasted palm trees at last where burning oil drums are all that separate them from Jap snipers not more than 30 feet away and it is one of these that gets Anthony Crupi.

He has just leaped into a half-dug foxhole and taken two shovelsful of dirt with the shovel still lying there when his body moves slightly forward with the effort and his head lifts or the bullet would have found his brain instead of his jaw and then his feet fly up and his head hits the ground very hard though he doesn't lose consciousness perhaps because of the instant pain that whirls through the nerves of his face and head and he can't breathe because of the blood choking in his throat.

He believes he is dying until Gunny forces a canteen into his mouth and the water revives him to the waves of pain and the rising crescendo of enemy fire that forces Marines around him to give ground—even Gunny.

"So long, Lucky," is the last thing Gunny says to him, patting him on the back, "I'll be seeing you, kid."

And then Lucky is alone with his agony and the brassy smell of his own blood mixed sickeningly with the stench of Japs.

He doesn't know how long he lies there. The watch on his wrist is rusted tight at 11:20—when he went in the water. He tries not to cry out with his pain like a Jap. Japs scream and jabber and Marines hate them for it. A Marine only moans a little. Lucky tries to hold back his moans, which is pretty tough for a kid of—well, younger than he wants you to think—and only 15 months out of school in spite of his size.

Three of Them In One Foxhole

Maybe it's the sound of his own voice or else of another wounded man calling "Corpsman!" from a few feet away that brings the strong arms that lift Lucky some two hours later out of his hole and drag him forward to a better shelter where a corpsman gives him morphine and a bandage for his face. The drug eases his body but doesn't kill the pains in his head.

There are now three of them in one foxhole with a single carbine among them which they take turns holding and all night someone keeps crawling up to order them to stay awake [illegible] before flame-throwers

Not that Lucky could fall asleep if he tried . . .

At daylight the fighting resumes and Lucky finds himself a rifle which he manages to fire without too much jar to his broken jaw by bracing the butt in the sand. He wonders why the other guys won't look at him straight.

"Why don't you go back to the ship!" they keep urging him, turning their eyes from the swollen, misshapen blob that was his face.

But there are still too many live Japs around to satisfy the blood lust of Anthony Crupi of the Bronx, though weakness and loss of blood makes him pass out now and then during the heat of the day.

His chance comes about two in the afternoon. He sees a deserted machine gun up ahead. The Marines who manned it have all been killed. Lucky is not only a machine gunner by training but he remembers the orders drummed into every marine to go for an automatic weapon.

Lucky Refuses Plasma Transfusion

Lucky circles the gun and crawls toward it from the front. For 15 glorious minutes he empties the belt in short spurts at Japs

America Takes Warning

MR. HOWARD E. BLOOD, chairman of the Post-War Distribution Sub-Committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, discussed the problem of industrial conversion from war to peace production before the Adcraft Club of Detroit in a manner that points up the great DANGERS attending the problem.

Since there can be no doubt about the ability of American industry to produce the goods the people will need and want after the war, and in so doing provide employment for demobilized fighting men and war workers, what ARE these dangers?

"If anything happens to hamper and delay prompt reconversion," said Mr. Blood, "the American public not only will be delayed in getting the goods it wants so much, but the unemployment problem will reach serious proportions."

What CAN happen to delay and hamper reconversion? These are serious questions.

Mr. Blood finds the answers in the December 27 issue of the magazine "Newsweek" which reported:

"Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson last week made public an order or 'directive' which, if American manufacturers have any fright left in them, should make their hair stand on end.

"Under this directive the procedure is established whereby a manufacturer can be ordered to produce and sell goods at cost: that is, without any profit to himself, which means without interest on his capital used in the production."

Here, indeed, are REAL dangers.

Who will produce the goods the people will need after the war if industry is prevented from producing them at a profit sufficient to sustain itself and justify its investments?

Who will operate existing factories under those conditions?

Who will build new factories?

Where will demobilized fighting men and war workers find employment?

No wonder "Newsweek" says that never before "has an order come out of Washington which had such far-reaching potentialities for the American economic system."

WHERE DOES THE AUTHORITY for such an order come from?

Certainly not from Congress, for as "Newsweek" says: "The Congress of the United States never intentionally delegated to the Chief Executive the authority to have orders issued which properly belong only under a Fascist regime, and THIS DIRECTIVE OF MR. VINSON CLEARLY IS OF THAT CHARACTER."

It is the type of bureaucratic regulation which Mr. Blood suspects "came from some of the long-haired boys down the line who didn't know much about business . . .

"If that directive represents the kind of control we are going to have to live under, I see BAD DAYS AHEAD FOR THIS COUNTRY."

The policies announced by Mr. Vinson, as Mr. Blood said in his Detroit speech, "would force the manufacturer, be he large or small, to STAY OUT of the business he was in before the war, avoid reconversion of his plant, modernization of his facilities, to drop any bold plans he may have made as an enterprising American employer, or as an alternative to resume the manufacture of his former lines at a loss."

Are we to have continued and extended REGIMENTATION after this war, and be stifled as a free country and a free people?

Or are we to have restored to us the American system of free enterprise which laid the foundations of the production which is enabling us to win this war?

Permanent regimentation would be the certain result of the bureaucratic proposal made by Mr. Vinson.

Freedom is only to be attained the AMERICAN way, for as Mr. Blood concludes:

"Free price competition alone will again set in motion those forces of incentive, initiative and enterprise which will produce more goods at lower costs and consequently improve the standard of living and secure maximum employment."

Too Young to Vote?

FROM the Southwest Pacific has come notice of the death of Sergt. Nathaniel D. Gamage of Lexington. There were few more active or useful men in this global conflict.

For months Nathaniel Gamage served valiantly with the RAF Ferry Command.

When he recovered from the serious wounds he received in this hazardous work, he joined the United States Army Air Force. He went immediately into action in Africa, saw war at its worst and then transferred to New Guinea.

But we are omitting an important thing in Sergt. Gamage's biography. HE WAS BORN ON OCTOBER 8, 1923.

That means he had not reached his twenty-first birthday when he died for his country. It also means that under our present laws he was held too young and too immature to vote.

We should change these antiquated laws. We should change them just as quickly as the complicated legal machinery permits. Massachusetts, the home state of Sergt. Gamage, should do this. And so should all other States.

A VETERAN of the fighting fronts, Air Force Tech. Sergt. John Thomas, says for the duration he will ask for dates only from girls in uniform. His policy may be followed by other fighting men. However, the sergeant will still have quite an attractive choice of dates. You see a lot of beautiful girls in uniform. Not only do they look beautiful but give an impression they might prove very interesting companions. Seems natural they would. A girl who loves her country usually has a good understanding of love in general. One thing is certain, a girl in uniform is not likely to be selfish and self-centered. Somebody should write a song titled "I'm Wacky About the WACs, Wild About the WAVES and Ga-Ga About the SPARS."

"ALFRED HITCHCOCK will reply to critics of his 'Lifeboat' film," states a contemporary. Seems some critics were so presumptuous as to refer to Mr. Hitchcock's film as "a phony." Still I am surprised the director has been aroused. It can't be he believes everything his press agent wrote about him. It is probably because he reduced 65 pounds. Men who have been very fat are usually easily irritated during the first few moments they are thin.

BRIEFLY: Our pup Timothy received 46 valentines from admirers. Some big shot! I hope he doesn't get a swelled head . . . After reading of so many elderly gentlemen who attributed their long life to not smoking or drinking I wondered if there were any aged men who smoked and took a little drink now and then. Am informed Levi Hailey of Orange, Calif., who is 99 years old and will be 100 on July 11, 1944, smokes continuously and drinks a little wine each day.

SAYS SHE: "So it is claimed gentlemen do not prefer synthetic blondes and this type of blonde is decreasing?" writes a Californian. "I am a synthetic blonde and have more proposals and dates than I can handle. Perhaps synthetic blondes are on the decrease. Not every girl now has time for the routine necessary to be a synthetic blonde. Few girls with another kind of hair have the features and coloring to go with blonde hair. Careless and inexperienced beauty operators have ruined the hair of so many women they have frightened other women. Anyway, an intelligent man does not pay much attention to the hair coloring of the woman of his choice. The outer appearance is secondary."

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Don't you think the Longchamps racetrack in Paris is the most beautiful in the world? A—I have not seen all the world's great race tracks. However, the Longchamps course is the most beautiful I have seen. Q—What was the name of that vaudeville team from Brooklyn? One fellow sang ballads and played the piano and the other sang comic songs. A—I guess you mean Van and Schenck. A great team.

PLEASE NOTE: It is about time a film version was made of the book "From Harlem to the Rhine." This is the story of a Negro regiment that had one of the best fighting records of any outfit in World War I. This film could be excellent entertainment and would also reveal the extent of the activity of Negro soldiers in the winning of the World War I . . . Ann Corio informs this department she believes she is as good a cook as Marlene Dietrich or Zasu Pitts. Ann says she has recently given dinners at her home for as many as 12 servicemen and on these occasions has done all the cooking.

BOSSES: Bea Bolen, a secretary, in an article on employers an amanuensis has to contend with, refers to the "walkie-talkie boss." This type, says she, walks up and down as he dictates. Such a boss can be "very annoying," says Bea. Keep that in mind, mister. Nobody can afford to annoy a secretary nowadays. Bea fails to mention another type of boss which I have heard makes secretaries chew their pencils. That is the fellow who punctuates as he dictates. Then there is the boss who at 4:45 in the afternoon gets full of pep, dictates a lot of letters which he says: "Must go tonight by air mail."

My Day By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday—Last evening I went to listen to a class which Mr. Edward Vander Veen is giving to cub reporters, but I noticed a number of older reporters attended also. Mr. Vander Veen has great experience and background, and will undoubtedly give these young people a great deal that is valuable in their profession.

He impressed them with the fact that being a reporter is not glamorous. It is hard work. I could not help thinking that everything else in the world which is worth doing is hard work. I doubt if any profession is really glamorous, but if you love your work, that makes it glamorous for you. As far as newspaper work goes, it has a number of angles which appeal to different types of people. It gives one a chance to see life, the seamy side along with the good side. Writing is an art, and like all arts it constantly dangles before you the chance to do better, and so you can never be bored.

MR. VANDER VEEN EMPHASIZED the necessity of having your facts and telling the truth as well as you can. One young girl said afterwards: "It looks to me as though you have to wait until you are a columnist before you can be a crusader." I wonder if it isn't being a crusader to learn to give facts and to try to get the truth before the readers of a paper. It is not easy for the average person to get at the truth. Even a statement which results from one person's honest search is helpful to many people.

HOLLYWOOD, March 4—June Preisser and her good looking husband, Dick Terry, came to see me the other day. Never, in all the years I have known Junie has she looked so well.

The girl whose acrobatic dancing was a sensation every time she appeared on the stage has grown up. She has a new poise, a new dignity and a sophistication that becomes her.

Susan Peters

I wondered why the little Preisser hadn't been signed by some film company. Today I learned that matter had been taken care of by Universal. She'll make two pictures there, and her first will be a chiller-diller mystery drama, "Murder in the Blue Room."

WELL, we had a scoop when Betty Grable went to the hospital but although I waited until three in the morning Victoria Betty didn't arrive until five. Betty had a pretty hard time and finally Dr. George Harris performed a Caesarian. She and the baby are doing nicely. The boys in Harry James' band didn't even know that Betty was in the hospital and he was with her. He was so excited he forgot to tell them the baby who came a month sooner than expected weighed seven pounds, 12 ounces.

IF I WERE a betting woman (I've reformed since there aren't any horse races around here) I would stake my dough on Jeanne Crain, 20th Century-Fox's young actress, getting the Francie role in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." Tests are being made and Darryl Zanuck is particularly eager that one of 20th's young actresses get the part, or at least an actress whose future pictures will be made at 20th (since it's pretty safe to say the girl who plays Francie will be a star). The Crain girl is beautiful and one of our most promising younger players.

SUSAN PETERS gave a surprising performance in "The Song of Russia." That little girl, from the moment she played in "Random Harvest," left no doubt in anyone's mind as to what might be expected of her. She and Anne Baxter, I think, are about the most talented of the younger screen stars. She is to have the lead in "Dear Barbara." Jimmy Durante and little Margaret O'Brien have already been announced for this picture. It won't surprise me if next year Susan wins an Academy Award—That's how good I think she is.

HOAGY CARMICHAEL, no less, composer of "Star Dust" and other hit tunes, is turning actor. Hoagy's good friend, Humphrey Bogart, talked him into playing a song writer in "To Have and Have Not," so today he was on the Warner lot with his make-up kit all ready to go. I'll bet a cookie that after hours the cast and crew will gather around the piano to hear Hoagy play some of his favorites. How that boy can entertain!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

THREE HUSKY young Americans—high school seniors—sprawling in front of the fire, consuming cokes and doughnuts—arranging their fates. While I listened, wondering, with a bitter dread, just what their fates would really be.

Five months from now they'd have graduated—been inducted—be at war. The very thought made me shudder. But it wasn't turning a hair of their towsled, blonde and bronze heads. War? Sure there was a war. But they'd mop that up—pronto. And then get on with college, as they'd always planned.

How did all this college urge start anyway? It hadn't been a basic necessity, save for the wealthy and talented few, when America started. Even at the turn of the century, not one youngster out of thousands dared dream of college. But, as we oozed into the 20th Century, there came softer times, easier money- that termite urge to "keep up with the Joneses." Slowly, but definitely, college became a "Must."

THEN CAME the First War . . . then the years of Flaming Youth—and then Pearl Harbor. And a terrible cry rising over the land—particularly from the Army and Navy—"Why, these College Graduates are just babies. They haven't really been trained for anything. All this classical exhibitionism is out—for the duration.

Whereupon the Educators, Inc., with a few courageous exceptions, made answer with a furious "NO!"

So I am back where we began. Three kids before a fire, planning post-war college.

Back to the campus? Is that the answer, even if we could afford it? Or back to an entirely different college where there's plenty of fun and sports, but courses that click with reality? Or, perhaps, no college at all . . . but something that truly deserves the name of a Real Education?

What do YOU think? Let's hear.

Opera Star Likes Suits, Solid Colors

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

IT WAS LEGEND not so many years ago . . . that an operatic diva who scaled the musical heights . . . must be a buxom gal . . . a feminine "hefty" . . . to give out in vital force with beautiful song from the depths of her soul-rendering avoirdupois. That's an over-statement today . . . far from the truth . . . if you've noted the trim silhouettes of the American footlight prima donnas.

These gifted gals not only look to their talent . . . but to their appearance, as well . . . and, for the most part they go "whole hog" in the good-grooming and beauty routine.

Her voice has made Annamary Dickey the acclaimed young Metropolitan Opera star that she is . . . but her stunning array of clothes . . . worn with distinction and eclat . . . have brought her national honors . . . and, because of her fetching smartness she was recently named one of the ten "best dressed" women in America . . . by no less an authority than the Fashion Academy.

And, take it from Annamary . . . it isn't an extensive wardrobe or a lavish one that earns a gal such a coveted fashion "Oscar" these days. War has brought as many changes in fashions as it has in most of the other phases of everyday living . . . and it is the smart woman . . . style-conscious . . . who knows how to make the most of her clothes.

Because rationing has even shown itself in the costuming of women . . . attractive Miss Dickey has simmered down her wardrobe to just a few basic dresses. All of them are simple and on the tailored side. They are dresses which are not fads or novelties . . . rather they remain in style from year to year . . . but what distinguishes them as worn by the delightful soprano are the unusual and well-chosen accessories.

THREE SUITS IN CLOSET

Since we must all learn to take care of our clothes . . . to make them last longer for the duration . . . let's listen to some of the tips this young singer offers.

She always keeps three suits in her closet . . . she says . . and during rehearsals for grand opera . . . wears one of her two-piece outfits with either a sweater or a blouse. Business and career girls could well follow this example . . . having, at least, two suits . . . to facilitate changing and preserving the life of the garments.

With blouses and dickeys so smart this spring . . . changes in these accessories would "dress" up a suit costume every time it is worn . . . giving it an appearance of newness and difference.

WEARS HIGH HEELS

Often called the "glamour girl" of the Metropolitan Opera, Miss Dickey accentuates her five feet seven inches of height. She almost always wears high-heeled shoes . . . and does not believe in trying to cramp her figure by appearing shorter. She believes in solid colors for her cocktail and evening clothes . . . catering to reds, greens, blues, whites and black.

Most of her wardrobe consists of conservative, straight-lined garments . . . and she does go "all-out" for hats . . . large floppy ones, both swagger and a casual . . . and the pill-box type of silk, taffeta and felt for the formal upswept hair-dos.

Wear attractive jewelry, Miss Dickey, advises . . . for that is one dramatic accent to any outfit which does wonders for its smartness.

KNOWN AS THE GLAMOUR GIRL of the Metropolitan Opera, Annamary Dickey, lovely young soprano, has been named one of the ten "best-dressed" women in America by the Fashion Academy. Here she is wearing a new spring accessory set . . . with her navy blue suit . . . consisting of a tiny pill box of red, blue and gold taffeta . . . sporting a "dicky" bird on the brim . . . and a bag of the same material, made for utility purposes. Even the singing gals look to their beauty of face and clothes.

WEEK-ENDS seem to be the time for experimental cooking for part-time homemakers. Not necessarily experimental cooking, but at least the kind that is overlooked during the week for the more urgent tasks.

Let's see what can be made this week-end that will be a little different. There's that pound jar of honey on the pantry shelf that would help make such a delicious cake. There are about 1 1-3 cups of honey in one pound. Out of this we could make a small jar of honey butter and a jar of salad dressing as well as the cake.

ORANGE HONEY CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
3½ tsp. baking powder
⅓ tsp. salt ½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar 2-3 cup honey
2 egg yolks
½ cup orange juice
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add honey. Blend. Add egg yolks and beat thoroughly. Add flour alternately with orange juice, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Fold in egg whites. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Spread your favorite frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

HONEY BUTTER

½ cup margarine or butter
½ cup honey

Let both butter and honey stand in a warm room until warm enough to blend well. Beat until well blended. Put in small jar and store in refrigerator.

SALAD DRESSING

Do not remove the honey that remains in the one-pound jar but add to it the following ingredients:

¼ tbsp. sugar 1 egg, well beaten
½ cup vinegar 2 tbsp. chili sauce
½ cup salad oil
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Place cover on jar and shake well. Serve on crisp lettuce.

CORN MUFFINS

¼ tbsp. sugar 1 egg, well beaten
1 cup sifted flour ¾ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. baking powder 1 cup milk
¾ cup yellow cornmeal
3 tbsp. shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine well beaten egg and milk, and add to dry ingredients. Stir in shortening. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 18 small or 12 medium muffins.

Martin Pattern

Pattern 9022 comes in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, frock, 3 yards 35-inch; bolero, 1½ yards 35-inch.

This pattern, together with a needlework pattern of useful and decorative motifs for linens and garments, 20 cents.

Mary Louise Rice Engaged

By BETTY ALDEN

FOR THE REMAINDER of the senior year at Vassar post deb Mary Louise Rice is wearing a sparkling diamond. Today her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Preston Rice of Chestnut Hill, announce her engagement to Goodwin Warner Harding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Harding, also of Chestnut Hill.

The bride-elect graduated from Winsor, and Goodwin is a Harvard '43 graduate.

A ROMANCE which began in Washington culminates in the marriage this afternoon of a Gotham socialite and the son of a prominent Milton family. In the Chapel of St. George's Church, New York, Mary Howard Armstrong becomes the bride of William Ellery Channing Eustis, son of Mr. Frederic Eustis of Milton.

The bride is the daughter of George Alexander Armstrong, American consul at Manchester, England. In his absence she has lived with her aunt in Washington where the bridegroom works in the Navy Dept. She is being given in marriage by her uncle, Sinclair H. Armstrong, and attended by Mrs. John M. Nelson, 3d, and Helen Elizabeth Pierce.

Ensign Peter Eustis, brother of the groom, is best man and the ushers include two brothers-in-law, Lieut. Theodore S. Jones and Winthrop H. Churchill of Cambridge; Lieut. Leverett S. Tuckerman of Salem and John A. Kessler. The newlyweds will live in Washington. Mary graduated from Milton Academy and Bryn Mawr.

FIRST G. I. SYMPHONY

TO SEE AND HEAR the composer of the first G. I. Symphony, fashionable music lovers flocked to the Symphony Luncheon at the Copley Plaza. Corp. Samuel Barber, whose first symphony had its debut in Rome seven years ago, wrote his new work as an Army assignment, dedicated it to the Air Force, and was here for the first perfo.mance by the Boston Symphony yesterday. At lunch he talked briefly to point out that other soldiers have written boogie woogie and swing for their camp shows but he is the first to compose a symphony.

Mrs. Charles F. Ayer and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., lunched together, the latter springlike in a navy serge suit with Cupid pink printed blouse and touches of pink on her navy sailor. Dorothy Cornish, Boston society girl who was soloist at last week's Symphony, relaxed and enjoyed herself as spectator yesterday. Mrs. William Hanway (Barbara Fulton) was festive in a crimson straw beanie and black veiling tied under her chin, and Mrs. Henry L. Mason, Jr., also attended.

New Hairdo Easy To Fix Yourself

CHICAGO PLANS BIG RALLY FOR SISTER KENNY

Special to the Boston Evening American

CHICAGO, March 4—Plans for a great mass meeting to keep Sister Kenny in this country were divulged today.

The Chicago Associated Nurses, thunderstruck by Sister Kenny's revelation she may be forced to leave the country by lack of support for her drive to conquer infantile paralysis, called the meeting for March 10.

Club, church, hospital and labor organization leaders have been invited to participate in a demonstration of the city's gratitude to the famed Australian nurse.

E. J. Brand and Charles E. Conway, who suggested the mass meeting, outlined its purpose. It is to honor Sister Kenny with a distinguished service citation for her contribution to humanity in her treatment of polio, and to organize a national club to make every effort to keep Sister Kenny in this country.

The Chicago Associated Nurses will welcome Sister Kenny as an honorary member.

It was decided that in addition to 1500 leaders from all walks of life, 50 children who owe the use of their limbs to Sister Kenny's methods will participate in the demonstration.

Promote Saltonstall, Jr.

Leverett Saltonstall, Jr., son of the Governor, now wears the silver bars of a first lieutenant in the Army. The promotion was made Feb. 17.

WHEN YOUNGSTERS LOSE THEIR APPETITES AND HEALTHY COLOR

Is your child a little "pale face"? Does he tire easily, pick at his food, and show signs of being weak and underweight? Don't ignore these symptoms, Mother! They may be Nature's warning of "nutritional anemia", caused by a shortage of iron in the blood. In such cases, a good iron tonic like Pepto-Mangan can be very helpful. Pepto-Mangan replenishes whatever iron the blood may be lacking—helps to give it that rich redness so essential for strength and pep, hearty appetite and rosy cheeks. Many doctors recommend Pepto-Mangan for run-down and growing children whose blood is deficient in iron. Ask your druggist for

War Prisoner's Wife Joins WAC

SPRINGFIELD, March 4—Mrs. Verley A. Joscelyn, 26, a Pittsfield war worker, today became a member of the WAC to avenge her husband, a Japanese prisoner of war.

"I figured that buying war bonds and working in a war plant weren't enough to make up for the loss of my husband. That's why I'm joining up," the young wife said as she took her oath before 4000 persons in Municipal Auditorium at ceremonies honoring the Air-WAC.

Her husband, Pfc. Robert Joscelyn, of Tilton, N. H., was captured on Bataan.

JVA Shares in Radio Tribute

Resourcefulness of members of the Boston Boys' Clubs, hundreds of whom are enrolled in the Junior Victory Army earned for them the merit certificate of the "Youth on Parade" broadcast from WEEI today.

The boys made Covered Wagon war bond and stamp booths which they stationed at busy places in Boston and in one day sold more than $1000 in bonds and stamps. The wagons were constructed in their own workshops from discarded materials they gathered.

Three JVA units, first of which was the "Defense and Aviation" Corps of Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester, have already received the award of merit.

Artists on the "Youth on Parade," including JVA members, rounded out the program with songs and continuation of the skit "Younger Brother of the Kid in Upper 4." These included Milton Grubbs, Ruth Casey, Elisabeth Craig, the St. Croix twins and Patsy Walsh. Dolphe Martin was director.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

McKenley's Ineligibility Costs Eagles 600 Title

By HUCK FINNEGAN

BC's LIST of individual IC4-A track and field champions can be counted on the fingers of one hand: Jake Driscoll, 440, in 1922; Clarence Flahive, indoor and outdoor high jump, in 1924; Dimmy Zaitz, who tied with Columbia's Dan Taylor for the indoor shot put title in 1937. That is all.

Consequently, the newsmen were shocked today, when they learned Herb McKenley had been declared ineligible on the eve of the intercollegiates and was forbidden to accompany BC's "team" to New York. Thus, Jack Ryder was left with sprinter Ralph King as his lone representative in the championships.

Herb McKenley

McKenley was a red-hot favorite to capture the 600. He's been flying ever since he won the national junior 400 meter championship (:47.7) last June. He copped the special 440 at the Hagg-Dodds stadium meet in July ran a :50 flat relay leg for BC in the BAA meet, was beaten an eyelash by Jim Herbert in the Buermeyer 500 two weeks ago, last week turned in a 1:12.1 effort as runner-up to Bob Ufer in the national 600.

Said Ryder: "He's turning in better times than Driscoll did in his hey-day."

McKenley hasn't been winning as consistently as Driscoll did, but it seemed as if tonight was the time for him to break through.

Calculus was the hurdle he couldn't clear at the Heights, and his fall was so heavy classmates said they wouldn't be surprised to see him drop out of college.

Smith and Vogel

TUFTS' DICK SMITH, recently commissioned an ensign, received orders to report for active duty Monday. He didn't choose to compete in New York this weekend, and who can blame him. As a result, Coach Dinger Dussault was forced to withdraw his two-mile relay which last week was handed a zinger when Ted Vogel washed out . . . Tufts has George Hay and Ray Southwick in the dash, John Lennon in the hurdles, Ted Sparrow in hurdles and high jump, Ralph King in the 1000 and a mile relay team composed of Southwick, George Kennedy, Eddie Palmieri and Harry Drake . . . Sparrow in the hurdles and the mile relay are championship possibilities . . . One month ago, Tufts had enough material to give Army, Navy and Dartmouth a run for the title. It has lost so many men, however, it will do well to finish fourth or fifth.

Dodds Goes for 1:01

SWIFTY DODDS left for New York a day ahead of schedule to appear on the radio . . . Ryder reported Dodds was flying in practice. "Beat McKenley in a 600 Wednesday," said the veteran BC-BAA coach. "First time he did it in four tries." The time was 1:15, exceptionally fast because a wind of gale proportions swept the track.

Would Dodds change his tactics when he faced Bill Hulse, Ollie Hunter, Les Eisenhart and Frank Martin tonight. Would he take it easy during the early stages of the race and save something for the last quarter?

"No," said Ryder, "but I hope he runs a more even race. I'd like to see him hit the quarter in 1:01, the half in 2:02 and the three-quarters in 3:03 or 3:04. That's what he's been shooting for but he's been ahead of schedule. However, it's better to be ahead than behind. I still insist he's got a 4:06 mile in him" . . . Dodds has three more chances to break the mile mark after tonight: at New York K. of C., Cleveland and Chicago . . . With McKenley ineligible, Ryder is hard pressed for relay material. But New York K. of C. (March 11) and Cleveland want BC represented.

McElroy No Myth

THERE is a Theodore F. McElroy. His office force at 82 Brookline ave., says so. But Mr. McElroy is a will o' the wisp. Call his home, and he's in Boston. Fenway Park says they see him walking in and out of his office every day. But he's always "out of town" to reporters. Brooklyn says he didn't even make bid to buy the Dodgers. Those who hibernate at the Red Sox offices, right across the street from McElroy's gadget shop, say he wouldn't walk across the street to see a ball game. Don't be surprised if the next "purchaser" of the Dodgers is Hubert Finnegan. Fellows in the office say he's got a "bundle."

Hornsby Denies Luring Talent

MEXICO CITY, March 4 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, newly-appointed manager of the Veracruz Club of the Mexican Baseball League, tonight denied criticism by Leo T. Miller, general manager of the Syracuse (N. Y.) team of the International League that he is luring players away from organized baseball.

In replying to Miller's reference to Antonio Rodriguez, Cuban infielder who played for Syracuse last year and has signed with Veracruz, Hornsby said, "I have nothing to do with signing any players in Mexico. My duties consist only of managing and teaching the fundamentals of the game.

"Rodriguez and several other Mexican and Cuban players who have been signed to play in Mexico couldn't play in the United States if they wanted to because of their draft status.

"These players would like to have permission from their club owners to play in this country until their draft status is cleared up. Then they would like very much to return to their teams.

Bruins Live in Hopes; Meet Rangers Tonight

By BILL GRIMES

While there's life, there's hope. And, although there has been but little life in the Bruins for weeks, the die-hard fans hope that the Rossmen will snap out of their six-game losing streak and knock off the Rangers tonight at the Boston Garden.

Mathematically the Bruins have a chance to make the Stanley Cup play-offs. They are four games behind Toronto and Chicago, who are deadlocked in third place. They have home and home series to play with Rangers and Detroit, home games with Canadiens and the Blackhawks and will wind up the season in Toronto two weeks from tonight.

If the Hawks and the Maple Leafs each win three of their remaining games, the Rossmen must win seven in a row to catch them.

On paper, the Rossmen have the softest touch for this weekend. While they are playing the lowly Rangers, Toronto will be battling at home and in Montreal, Les Canadiens who are trying to break the N. H. L. points record held by Boston, and Chicago will be tangling with the Red Wings, in home and home series.

Mgr. Art Ross will not announce his forward line combinations and his spare defense man until just before game time. He took Guy Labrie from the Olympics but refused to state whether or not he would use him. If Labrie, who is a very much underrated defense man in these parts, doesn't dress, "Busher" Jackson will share the defense duties with "Dit" Clapper and Pat Egan and the third line will comprise Russ Kopak, Clarence Schmidt and Tommy Brennan. But, if Labrie, who is feeling better than he has in three weeks, gets the nod, Tommy Brennan or Schmidt will be sidelined.

The Rangers are winding up the poorest season since they entered the N. H. L. They have won but six games and have three ties in 43 starts. They've beaten Boston and Toronto twice and their other victories were over Detroit and Chicago.

But, they have established two all-time high records, attendance and goals scored against. They have played before near capacity houses in all of their 22 home games and Ken McAuley, single-handed has shattered the all-time goals against mark (253) which required the combined efforts of Steve Buzinski, Jimmy Franks, Bill Beveridge and Lionel Bourvette to set up last year. If he holds to his present average, which is 6.09 per game, McAuley has an excellent chance of yielding 300 goals this season. He has seven games in which to make up a 38 goal deficit. As the Rangers' scoring average is only 3.3, it's not to be wondered at that they have lost 34 out of 43 games.

Pics Win 35th; Falcons Next

The Olympics won their tenth straight and 35th out of 38 games by taking an 11-2 verdict over the New York Rangers at the Garden.

Guy Labrie was the high scorer for Boston with three goals and two assists. Vernon Jones notched four assists and a goal for five points.

The Pics go after another win tomorrow afternoon at the Garden when they meet the Philadelphia Falcons.

Squire Sees Champ In French Soldier

By BILL CORUM

There's a ringside rope and a ringside row
And a scrap at the Cirque Paree,
And the gallery gab from the olive drab
Gives a whoop for the referee . . .

Those are the opening lines of some verse written long ago by a man named J. Palmer Cumming and printed at the time in the original "Stars and Stripes."

It was a brief phone chat I had with Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight champion, who has just returned from the battle zones in Africa and Italy with Freddie Corcoran, that reminded me of the Cirque de Paris in Paris and the great fights that took place there after the other war.

A fellow named Gene Tunney came out of those A. E. F. championships, you know—a winner taking his first halting steps toward last boxing fame and a bright place in the military and sporting annals of this country.

CARPENTIER OF THIS WAR

There was a sensational young fighter in France at the time, a popular idol and a chap who also was destined to leave his mark in ring history. Destined, too, to be cut down by that same Tunney some five years later, not to mention what Dempsey did to him in the first "Battle of the Century."

His name, of course, was Georges Carpentier, the one some sports writer nicknamed "The Orchid Man."

Well, Sharkey says there is another great French fighter in Africa today, the sailor Marcel Cerdan. To put it in direct quotes, the Boston Squire says:

"He is the greatest prospect I have ever seen in the ring. You know I'm not a fellow to go crazy over any fighter and I have seen some pretty good boxers such as Loughran and Greb. But nobody can say too much about this Frenchman as he looked in that big tournament in Algiers.

BETTER THAN ROBINSON

"I was in there where I could see pretty good, since I refereed most of the matches, and Cerdan has got everything any fighter can have. He just walks in straight up and fighting, no crouching or weaving. His left comes right out of the book, whether he's jabbing or hooking, and his right cross is apt to ring down the curtain any time he lands it. In fact, he hurts with both hands and is capable of scoring a knockout with either."

I interrupted the enthusiastic ex-champ long enough at this point to remark that he made Cerdan sound like a good match for Ray Robinson. The Frenchman weighs 156 pounds now and is growing. But Jack figures Marcel even better than that, which would make him good, indeed, in my opinion.

"I don't believe Robinson could stay in there with him. That is, if he can train himself into condition to last through a long fight. He's in good shape, as most of the boys were in this tournament. However, it is the sort of condition for the other sort of fighting they have over there.

"But amateur or not, you and I never saw much boxing and fighting as this tournament produced. It rained every night and when it wasn't raining it was pouring. But 80,000 American, English and French soldiers and sailors came early and stayed to the end and loved every minute of it.

"Omar Khoudri, also a welter and also a Frenchman, impressed me, too, as did an Algerian whose name I don't recall at the moment.

Which more or less echoed Commander Tunney's sentiments about some of the young fellows he recently had seen in boxing action in the Pacific areas.

SHARKEY AT GARDEN

All of which should gladden Uncle Mike Jacob's heart beyond measure.

Sharkey and Corcoran were at the Garden to see Beau Jack and Montgomery battle last night, and it happens that they left for overseas immediately after watching the same pair last Nov. 19. They must have liked it the first time. Anybody who travels 20,000 miles and comes back to see the same two fellows meet again has to like it.

Prizes for Servicemen

There will be special prizes for servicemen in the 34th annual Cathedral 10-mile road race which will be held Saturday, April 8, over the streets of South Boston and the South End.

Somerville High Favorite For Tech Tourney Hoop Crown

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Everybody in Somerville walks around with their fingers crossed these days, avoiding ladders and black cats so that there'll be no jinx falling on the shoulders of Coach Vin Cronin and his classy high school basketball outfit, slated to swing into action in the annual Tech Tourney at the Garden next Wednesday night.

Somerville can't miss being installed a favorite to capture the crown with seven tourney veterans back on the goal-production line but that's only making the faithful more careful.

"It's going to take an awfully good team to beat us," declared Coach Cronin. "I don't dare jinx the boys by claiming that we'll win the championship but if we are eliminated, it might be fairly safe to say that the team that stops us will go on to the title. It happened that way last year."

TOURNEY VETERANS

Somerville's tourney veterans include Urban Landini, Tony Lavalli, Robert Pugatch, Tom McCarthy, Charlie Diehl, Robert Judge and Dick Snow. The remainder of the squad scheduled to participate in the play includes Al Perry, who'll probably be the first Somerville substitute, Ed Colbert, George Hughes, Jim Hickey and Ken Goodwin.

Perry, a sophomore, was the only player not with the squad last year.

Somerville will be going into the tourney with the high scoring record of the eight Class A entries as well as the top record of 17 straight victories. The Cronin crew has chalked up a grand total of 785 points while holding the opposition to 416. The team won 12-straight in Greater Boston League competition, has topped St. Clement's, Charlestown Boys' Club and Rindge Tech twice for its swell mark.

Scoring records for other A entries find Attleboro with 726 for, 403 against; Brockton, 528-394; Haverhill, 449-340; Medford, 684-515; New Bedford, 526-418; North Quincy, 470-281; Waltham, 570-357.

SCHOOL HOCKEY

The question whether Medford could beat Hudson and vice versa won't be settled this year seeing that Hudson was knocked out of the winners' circle in the first round of the Metropolitan hockey round by Needham.

But in view of its first round performance, Needham will be a fit rival for the Mustangs tonight when the two meet for the championship at the Arena.

Needham and Medford are equal in depth as neither team has any capable reserves.

Coach John Prior of Medford will stick to his usual starting line of Garrity, McNair and Brennan, while Needham will counter with Roman (three goals against Hudson), De Varennes and Sabroski.

The fight for individual honors will be between Garrity and Roman up front and the goalies, Dick Desmond and Ed Hoyle, will battle it out for defensive brilliance.

The Consolation round between St. Patrick's and Hudson starts at 7:30 and the final for the championship will begin about nine.

and Christmas and New Year's spent alone.

"My! it's good to be home. I'm lucky to be home," was all he could say at first.

Then he gave the girls cameos from Italy and to his son a German helmet, taken from a Nazi soldier.

"The sports show brought the boys right back home to America," he said.

"Lefty and Freddy and I showed movies of golf, the 1943 World Series, and boxing. Afterwards we had a 'bull' session, and the boys really made the show then.

"They had a chance to ask questions, yell, and argue with us.

One private got up at the last show and asked me if I'd fought Jack Johnson. This brought a big laugh and I told him I hadn't fought Abe Lincoln either.

"Well, those shows took their mind off the war anyway. And we people over here will never know what the nurses and Red Cross workers with their canteens and clubs meant to the men.

MET MANY HUB BOYS

Sharkey, who met many Greater Boston boys in his tour, said that mail is the most important thing for the morale of our soldiers.

"We must write to them and never forget what it means to get a letter over there. It is a pretty small thing to do, and believe me, a good letter can heal a lot of wounds that come in war from other things than gunfire and bombs . . . loneliness, homesickness and despair."

Coffee Bowl Grid Tilt In London March 19

LONDON March 4 (AP)—That "Tea Bowl" football game Feb. 13 in which a Canadian Army team defeated one from the American Army was such a howling success that there will be a repeat performance March 19. This time, however, it will be known as the "Coffee Bowl."

Mechanics' Hoop Bill

Another standout hoop doubleheader has been carded for Mechanics Building tomorrow afternoon when the Brooklyn Eagles battle the 303rd Quartermasters in one game and the St. Mary's five of West Quincy meets Chelsea Naval Hospital in the other half.

MONTGOMERY TAKES TITLE FROM JACK

NEW YORK, March 4 (INS)—Bob Montgomery regained the New York Boxing Commission's lightweight title by winning a close decision over Beau Jack, of Augusta, Ga., in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Montgomery's victory, which gave him the New York crown for the second time within eight months, and a second victory over Jack, set him up for a 15-round bout with Sammy Angott, of Washington, Pa., at the Garden on March 31.

The Montgomery-Angott bout will produce an undisputed world's lightweight title, since Angott is the 135-pound boss upheld by the National Boxing Association.

A crowd of 19,066 shelled out $111,954 to see Montgomery eke out a nod over Jack that was closer than a band of Scotchmen. The bout simmered down after two rounds and developed into a head-to-head contest featuring infighting.

It did not start that way, however, as Jack opened up the first round with five straight left hooks and 10 right chops to the head, inside. Monty came back with straight right crosses in the second, but was baffled by Jack in the third round, as the Beau gave ground but scored with hard counter-punches.

From the fourth round on, Jack and Montgomery looked like a pair of elk who had locked horns and couldn't move. The last eight rounds were fought head to head, with both of the contestants scoring few clean punches.

Lanier K. O.'s Finazzo in 6th

Johnny Finazzo, 167½, 19-year-old Baltimore fighter, gave one of the gamest exhibitions of courage seen in Boston in many years, but it wasn't enough and the referee stopped the one-sided battle and awarded the fight to Berlie Lanier, 165, on a technical K. O. in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight. Johnny had one thing and that was the aforementioned courage, but it couldn't prevail against the more experienced Lanier.

George (Red) Doty, 159½, Hartford, was on the receiving end in his battle with Joe Sulick, 145½, New York, and lost a 10-round decision.

The Hartford boy fought a defensive battle all the way with the New Yorker forcing the issue.

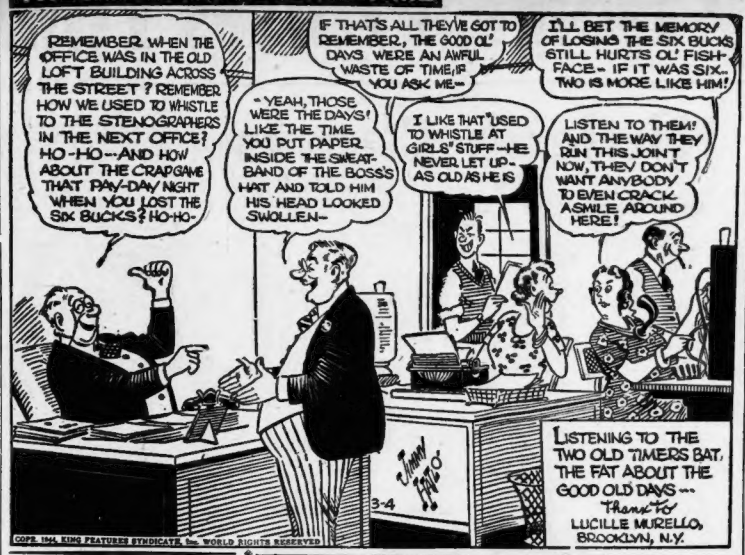
In the opening four, Archie Goodbee, Hartford, won a unanimous decision over Young Beau Jack, Baltimore.

Sam Daniels, Baltimore, registered a kayo victory over Joe Gombara, New York, in a four-round punchfest.

Sam Maltempo, Manchester, Ct., won a unanimous decision over Fred Beshore, Newport, R. I., in six.

The gross receipts were $4550.76 and the net $3618.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME



REMEMBER WHEN THE OFFICE WAS IN THE OLD LOFT BUILDING ACROSS THE STREET? REMEMBER HOW WE USED TO WHISTLE TO THE STENOGRAPHERS IN THE NEXT OFFICE? HO-HO--AND HOW ABOUT THE CRAPGAME THAT PAY-DAY NIGHT WHEN YOU LOST THE SIX BUCKS? HO-HO-
IF THAT'S ALL THEY'VE GOT TO REMEMBER, THE GOOD OL' DAYS WERE AN AWFUL WASTE OF TIME, IF YOU ASK ME--
I'LL BET THE MEMORY OF LOSING THE SIX BUCKS STILL HURTS OL' FISH-FACE - IF IT WAS SIX-- TWO IS MORE LIKE HIM!
"YEAH, THOSE WERE THE DAYS! LIKE THE TIME YOU PUT PAPER INSIDE THE SWEAT-BAND OF THE BOSS'S HAT AND TOLD HIM HIS HEAD LOOKED SWOLLEN--
I LIKE THAT "USED TO WHISTLE AT GIRLS" STUFF--HE NEVER LET UP--AS OLD AS HE IS LISTEN TO THEM! AND THE WAY THEY RUN THIS JOINT NOW, THEY DON'T WANT ANYBODY TO EVEN CRACK A SMILE AROUND HERE!

Chisox Have Enough Players for Team

CHICAGO, March 4 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox spring training roster is continuing to grow, with 15 players having advised Vice-President Harry Grabiner they are satisfied with their 1944 contracts.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, vacationing in Hollywood, is not due here until March 15, to leave for the training camp the following day. But he already has enough players to field a team—and all could be assigned to their regular positions.

Milton Navy Pilot Sets Japs on Heels

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, March 4 (AP)—A Navy Catalina flying boat, piloted by Lieut. (jg) Robert Corbett Hussey, 46 Warren ave., Milton, Mass., mixed flares with bombs to perform a key role in the aerial assault on Jap barges and shore installations on Bougainville island, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Hussey, a former Boston athlete, lighted the shoreline with flares during the night attack, dropped bombs, strafed a barge, then kept the enemy off balance by zooming over the area and dropping flares to guide P-T boat assaults.

Hussey's crew included Ens. William Culp, Akron, O.; Frederick Kelly, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; William Coleman, Mosciusko, Miss; John Bonner, 27 Seattle st., Allston, Mass., and Allen Powell, Baltimore, Md.

Illinois Vets to Get Unclaimed Turf Cash

CHICAGO, March 4 (AP)—The Illinois racing board has a fund of $91,781, representing the amount of winning mutuel tickets which have not been cashed in by bettors at teh state's tracks.

Chairman Ednyfed H. Williams, disclosing the total of unclaimed tickets, said the board was going to change its policy of holding the cash. Effective this season, he said, all unclaimed cash will be turned over to the Illinois Veterans' Rehabilitation fund.

13's: Lucky or No?

NEW YORK, March 4—Only 13 of 31 Yankees have signed their 1944 contracts.

It is hoped that most of the unsigned players will bring their contracts with them when they report to Joe McCarthy at Atlantic City a week from tomorrow for spring training.

Outfielder Bud Metheny and Pitcher Jim Turner were the latest to sign.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4—Thirteen Phillies are under contract and will report for spring training in two weeks, boss Herb Pennock said today.

Manager Fred Fitzsimmons and Coaches Mervyn Shea and Chuck Klein are included in the 13 players who have already signed contracts.

Dead Jap

This Jap stuck his head up out of his foxhole on Engebi island in the Eniwetok atoll at the very moment an American flame-thrower belched its scorching breath across the top of it.

Home

Tired, but happy to be home in Chestnut Hill after a three-month tour of service camps in North Africa, is Jack Sharkey. Here he greets son Jack, left, and daughters Marilyn and Dorothy, as he arrives home. Jackie, 15, is a student at Admiral Bullard Academy in New London, prepping for Annapolis.
